

The Colorful Crane

Sylver Schachtell, Grade 6

Boise

There is a crane, long legs, bending down, ready for a drink, but clearly insulted by me. I step back so he doesn't see long grass green and orange cover his feet. The day is foggy and the crane hard to see, but in my mind I see bright colors, but in life it stays plain: black, white, dull gray.